

The UK's National Supercomputing Service

Endothelial glycocalyx – defender of blood vessel walls

The lumen side of our blood vessel walls is covered by a tree-like structure called endothelial glycocalyx (EG). This image shows the EG conformation under blood flow conditions.

Xizhuo Jiang (University College London, Department of Mechanical Engineering)

Image Competition: Early Career Researcher Entry Winner 2020

www.archer2.ac.uk